The Mistake Men Make.

We have often wondered why it is that men so persistently engage in pursuits for which they have no fitness. An inscrutable Providence seems to have implanted in the minds of many men an insatiable desire to be forever doing precisely the thing that they cannot do. The common-sense rule in life would seem to be for every man to find out, if possible, what he can do best, and then do it with his might. But how many men seem to proceed on the rule of finding out what they can do worst, and then refusing to do anything but that. We are all of us not quite satisfied to be what we are, and more or less anxious to be what we are not and never can be.

Half the unhappiness of life, half the failures that men make, are traceable to this cause. Sometimes the foible is simply laughable. When a little man swells about with the air of a giant; when a youth with a high, squeaky voice persists in singing bass; when a smooth-faced man will wear a full beard—we smile at the result, and no harm is done. Somebody has made himself ridiculous, but he is happy in doing it, and nobody else is made miserable. But here is a man with excellent gifts for making a good blacksmith, but he will be nothing but a lawyer; there is another with the making of a first-class farmer in him, and he will be only a preacher; still a third, whose ideas never soared above the dullest of prose, fancies he is born to be a poet, and inflicts his verses on a long-suffering world whenever he can find anybody to print them.

If perversity of this kind made only the victim himself unhappy, it might be borne more patiently. But not only do his family and relatives share the misfortunes that inevitably pursue through life the man who insists on doing what he cannot do; upon all who know him falls a part of the burden, also. The man of this type is always, in his own opinion, an ill-appreciated man of genius, an unlucky dog who has deserved far better things of Fortune than the fickle dame has bestowed on him; and his friends have to hear complaints of this kind ad nauseam. Happy, indeed, they may reckon themselves if only their ears are besieged, and their purses are not laid under contribution by these ne'er-do-wells.

The cure for the evil is not easy to find. The chronic case is probably hopeless, and beyond the reach of any remedies known to man. When caught young, this kind of man may be turned into a decent and respectable citizen. The origin of his troubles is often injudicious praise administered by some well-meaning person. If some candid and wise friend would say to the budding young poet: "See here, young man; you can never rise above mediocrity in verse, and had best content yourself with plain prose," it might be the making of him. As the judicious application of a bucket of cold water at the right moment will prevent a great conflagration, so a little quiet repression administered at the critical time would often prevent conceit from devouring a man's character. Is it objected that this course would some times result in the repression of real genius—the "mute, inglorious Miltons" of whom the poet sings? Genius is a hardy plant, and is not so easily nipped in the bud. What is in a man will generally come out at some time, if he can only be prevented from trying to get out of himself what is not there. And if the objection were valid, think what wrecks would be prevented by the process, and say if the good would not overbalance the evil. Better risk marring a genius once in a century than make so many bores every year.—N. Y. Examiner.

A Tale of Texas.

The late Captain James M. Armstrong, of Texas—as honest and patriotic a man as ever lived in any age or country—migrated from Fayette County, Kentucky, to Texas, when scarcely arrived at manhood, immediately after the Republic had been organized. He was a quiet, but very shrewd and observing youth. Soon after his arrival at Nacodoches, he found out that the refugees from justice (from "the States"), who were then quite numerous in that place, were in the habit of holding, from time to time, at night, what they called "The Awful Court." Every new comer was arrested—generally when he least suspected it,—was brought before the "court," which sat with an imposing array of officers and spectators in a secluded room, was arraigned and asked: "What made you come to Texas?" If, in his reply, he didn't admit that he came as a refugee from justice because he had committed some crime, the judge would order him to be whipped until he confessed; and when he had confessed he was sentenced to treat the crowd. No new comer was permitted to claim that he was innocent, and came of his own free will. If the party arrested, however, answered promptly, stating some crime that he had committed before leaving "the States," and giving time, place, and circumstances, he was at once discharged without costs. "The Awful Court" was generally presided over by one L., who was known to have robbed a gold mining company, which was the immediate cause of his leaving Georgia. One day, in conversation, he observed to young Armstrong:

"Young man, we will shortly have you up before our 'Awful Court.'"

Armstrong, with an air of surprise and diffidence, said he hoped not, and passed on. On the night of that very day he was arrested and led through devious ways to where "The Awful Court" was sitting. Although the hour was late, the dimly lighted court-room was thronged. In a few moments the presiding judge ordered him to stand up, and then in a distinct voice, before the hushed audience, put the following question:

"Young man, what made you come to Texas?"

Armstrong replied hesitatingly, with an air of embarrassment: "It was such a mean little thing that I don't want to tell about it."

The question was calmly put a second time, and received the same answer.

Thereupon the presiding judge sternly remarked:

"I now ask you for the third and last time, what made you come to Texas?"

Armstrong responded with apparent confusion: "If I must tell I must. I stole a sheep."

"Stole a sheep!" exclaimed the presiding judge, in real astonishment. "Stole a sheep! Men, did you ever hear of the like? Young man, what made you steal a sheep?"

Armstrong drily replied: "Because they who came to Texas ahead of me left nothing else in the criminal line to do."

"The prisoner's discharged and the court adjourned," said Judge L. "Men, it's my treat."

When Captain Armstrong was in command of a volunteer company of Texans in Louisiana, in 1864, the writer learned from him that the above was literally true.—Texas Siftings.

FOURTEEN millions of the twenty-six millions of Tennessee bonds have been funded.

THIRTY-SIX persons were killed and fifty seriously injured by a falling chimney at Bradford England, on Thursday.

THE civil suit against John A. Cockerill, instituted by the widow of Col. A. W. Slayback, at St. Louis, has been withdrawn.

CONGRESSMEN Morrison, of Illinois, has declared that the report of the tariff commission "is a fraud and a cheat." Very likely it is.

THE senate has passed a bill appropriating $10,000 for the erection of a monument to Baron DeKalb. It is to be put up at Annapolis, Md.

COMMISSIONER BOWMAN's estimate of the Kentucky crops for this year reads: Wheat—Acreage, 1,436,705; bushels, 17,156,649. Oats—Acreage, 805,974; bushels, 5,498,740. Rye—Acreage, 251,667; bushels, 3,118,669. Hay—Tons, 664,386. Grass—Acres, 2,778,048.

THERE is too much talk among the democratic leaders concerning the distribution of offices to be made by the incoming democratic congress, says the Hardin county Democrat. What the people care more about is the inception and execution of a plan by which the number of these officials may be largely reduced and the expenses brought within legitimate bonds. The duty of the democracy can be expressed in one sentence. The running of the government upon business principles, such as intelligent business men would apply to their private affairs.

"ALL our party wants," says a republican organ, "is unity of purpose and harmony of action." Which reminds us of a small story pertaining to the late senator Wade. Some years ago he paid a semi-official visit to the wilds of western Kansas and was asked by one of the inhabitants what he thought of the country. "It seems to be a pretty nice sort of a country—of its kind," was the senatorial reply. "Yes," said the inhabitant, "it is a mighty fine country; all we want here is water and good society." "Well," said bluff and burly Benjamin, "for that matter, my friend, that is all hell wants."

NEWS BREVITIES.

The cholera is ravaging southern Mexican towns.

Her Majesty's ship, Undine, captured eight slave dhows on the east coast of Africa.

Twenty persons were drowned by the washing away of a bridge near Lorrach, Baden.

Martin Watson attacked another negro named Leslie Coombs, in Bourbon county, with an ax, striking him in the side and severing one of his ribs.

Rains flooded St. Ursuline, Switzerland. Several towns in the valley of the Doube are inundated. The Jura and Bere railway is seriously damaged.

Edna Roberts, killed at Owensboro, Tuesday, was shot in the mouth, the bullet entered the brain without touching her lips, teeth or tongue.

George A. Portwood, one of the participants in the Lawrenceburg tragedy, is not dead, as was reported. Although receiving three severe wounds, he is rapidly recovering.

The steamer New England was totally wrecked in Clarence river, New South Wales, on the 24th. The passengers and crew, numbering twenty-four persons, were lost.

Gambetta is reported in a dangerous condition again. He is at the mercy of four physicians, who are discussing the cheerful subject of lancing an abscess in his stomach.

For and About Women.

"The proper study of mankind is man." Pope knew better than to say "woman."

Twenty-seven women working in a chain gang were a sad sight at Atlanta, Ga.

"Mean?" she cried, "my husband is the meanest wretch in the world. He won't give me the least excuse for complaining."

The owner of a pair of bright eyes says the prettiest compliment she ever received came from a child of four years. The little fellow, after looking intently at her eyes for a moment, inquired naively, "are your eyes new ones?"

They tell in San Francisco of a very wealthy woman who is remarkably strict in the discipline of her servants. She defends herself by saying that she was a servant until five years ago, and therefore knows all about both sides of the subject.

The ladies have distinguished themselves once more in the London University class. The scholarship and gold medal for obstetrics are taken by a lady; two ladies are placed in the first class, one a student from Girton College; five more gained second classes, and several others are in the third class.

The most successful of recent confidence women in the west was one who represented herself as the niece of President Garfield and an accredited agent of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. She carried forged letters of introduction, made excellent speeches for total abstinence, gained the confidence of christian women in a number of cities, and made a good living, besides accumulating a considerable amount of money contributions.

Paris women have not shown much desire to study medicine, yet Mme. Bres, one of the few French ladies who have been doctors of the faculty of that city, has lately presented to the Academy of Sciences an interesting and important analysis of human milk. Some points are given, in connection with its use for infants, which are well calculated to startle those mothers who believe in the healthfulness of what is called the bottle method.

DURING the year 20,410 Kentuckians applied for pensions, of whom 8,042 were admitted, 2,033 rejected, and the other cases are pending.

COMMISSIONER RAUM has decided that unless the bonded spirit bill is passed the tax on 543,000 gallons must be collected this month and the spirits withdrawn from bond.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me." HORACE FAIRBROTHER.
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup. — A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than four or five hours the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRADGON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

MONDAY EVE., JANUARY 1, 1882

ROSSER & MCCARTHY,

PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

To keep old Johnny Alcohol
The inner parts from burning,
Every toper in the town
A new leaf should be turning.
Let each now swear a great big oath
He'll set aside his "tea,"
And live a strictly sober life
In eighteen eighty-three.

Don't forget to turn over the new leaf to-day.

The Lewis county teachers' association will meet at Tollesboro, next Saturday.

The Cincinnati Gazette and Commercial are to be consolidated. The change will take effect this week. The new paper will be called the Commercial-Gazette, and will be managed by Mr. Richard Smith.

It may console the superstitious who believe that a green Christmas makes a fat churchyard, to know that there is another old saw saying: "If the sun shines clear and bright on Christmas day, it promiseth a peaceful year from clamors and strife, and foretells much plenty to ensue."

Stabbed.

A cutting affray took place in East Maysville on Saturday morning that may have a fatal termination. Ben McDaniel, who had been drinking, was very abusive to Boley Price, a boy about sixteen years of age, and son of Mr. J. Freeman Price. The boy resented the treatment and was knocked down by McDaniel, and in return stabbed him in the right breast with a pocket knife, the blade entering the lung. The wounded man is resting easily to-day but is considered to be in a very critical condition. Price was arrested but was released by giving a bail bond for $200.

Gigantean Minstrels.

Leavitt's Gigantean Minstrels, a well and widely known troupe of artists, will visit this city on the 6th inst and give an entertainment at the opera house. The press everywhere have had good words for this company. The Boston Post says:

Saturday evening Leavitt's Gigantean minstrels made their first appearance in this city at the Boston Theatre to a large audience, and a veritable surprise was in store, which resulted in the universal decision that the finest minstrel entertainment ever seen in Boston had been witnessed that evening. In the first appeared forty performers, and the portions of the entertainment presented by them was of superlative excellence. Hearty encores greeted the fine singing of the octette, and enthusiastic and frequent encores prolonged the entertainment, to a late hour. The same bill will be presented during the present week.

The entertainment at the opera house this evening by the Anthony & Ellis Uncle Tom's Cabin troupe will be an excellent one, and there ought to be a large audience present to witness it. Not only is the company an exceptionally strong one, every part being powerfully portrayed but the scenic attractions and special features add vastly to the success of the drama. Among the most effective scenes are the snow-storm on the Ohio, with Eliza escaping over the ice, the fierce bloodhounds close upon her, and the garden scene at St. Clair's residence, where a real waterfall is introduced; the largest ever put upon the stage. The grand closing transformation scene, Eva in heaven, is most effective, and there are many other strong scenes, notably the new bar-room scene, and the plantation scene. The double topsy is another innovation, and the two artists who play the part delight all with their sparkling fun. The Memphis University students will sing, and Eva's pet pony will delight all.

AYER's Cherry Pectoral is recommended by physicians of the greatest eminence on both sides of the Atlantic, as the most reliable remedy for colds and coughs, and all pulmonary disorders. It affords prompt relief in every case. No family should ever be without it.

THE Portsmouth Times of last Saturday says:

The Anthony & Ellis company played Uncle Tom's Cabin to a $160 house last Thursday night. It was superior to any rendition of the play by former combinations. The water fall was produced on the stage, and won merited applause. The banjo playing and plantation songs were excellent, and when the company comes this way again, it will be greeted with a packed house.

COUNTY POINTS.

SARDIS.

Christmas began here about the 20 inst., consequently by the 25th our village was comparatively quiet, the day closed however, with a very unfortunate occurrence which from observation may be stated as follows:

As our cornet band returned from Mt. Olivet, Monday night, and was passing a grocery—not whisky—where some boys were shooting a cap-gun, or something of that kind, as the wagon passed a young man from near Mayslick, fired at the crowd. The bullet unfortunately struck Master Ollie Palmer on the head passing around the skull bone a short distance. The ball was soon extracted by Dr. C. C. Wells. Ollie is doing as well as could be expected. The shot I presume was not accidental, but was fired in the absence of any of danger, or harm being the result.

Miss Annie Grigsby, accompanied by her brother, Master Owen, are visiting relatives at Tollesboro, Ky. Miss Annie is one of our most popular young ladies, always bright and cheerful.

Elder J. Irvin West, of Germantown, Ky., has accepted a call from the Christian Church to labor with them one-fourth of his time in 1883. Mr. West is a man of acknowledged ability and as a minister of a different church, says, our town is complimented, by securing such talent. He begins his work on Saturday night before the first Lord's Day in January. Lord's Day morning and night, everybody is cordially invited.

On Tuesday night our place was somewhat disturbed by a bus passenger becoming uncontrollable, he was induced to remain over night, but in the morning, promptly paid his hotel bill, which was $9.50 including all the incidental and went on his way.

Rev. Thomas Handford, who labors so acceptably for the M. E. Church at this place and Murphysville, has very kindly offered to give a lecture, on some interesting subject, for the benefit of the Christian Church at this place. Mr. Handford knows the church has been at great expense the past year in repairing &c., and he thus kindly tenders his services which is characteristic of the man, whose views are liberal and whose large generous heart is not contaminated by prejudice.

A LOOK AROUND

For Newsy Matters in Many Places.

Texas girls go wild after schoolmasters. Adam Bard, of Reading, is preparing to construct a pond 45 by 95 feet on his farm in Cumru township, for the purpose of carp culture.

A minister and a physician are having a fight in the courts of Lynn, Mass., because the man of religion habitually declared that the man of medicine was unfit for professional work.

A roulette wheel in a Cincinnati gambling room was stolen, and the thieves turned out to be rival gamblers, who desired to have one made just like it. They testified in court that it was a new invention, containing a spring by means of which its victim could be robbed at will, the dealer being able to make the ball stop at whatever number he pleased.

It is believed that the enormous sale of lager has considerably crippled the sale of Bass' ale in this country, while the latter has also a most potent antagonist in what has been one of its prime places of demand—British India—not merely because light wines have come so much into vogue there, but from the rise of native breweries and the growing taste for German lager. The Calcutta collector of customs says that the importation of Pilsner, which is the most popular, has grown from 7,460 gallons in 1879-'80 to 61,795 last year.

Electric lights are to be placed in all the rooms on the main floor of the new capitol at Albany. Among the rooms which will be thus lighted are the governor's apartments, the secretary of state's and the attorney-general's. No attempt will be made to light the large halls used by the legislature with the electric lamps, a previous trial of them having shown that they do not give a steady enough light for the members to write with ease at the night sessions. It is probable that the assembly chambers will be sufficiently repaired to permit of the room being used by the assembly when that body meets on January 2.

Gretna Green.

Cleveland Leader.

Among yesterday's guest at the Forest City House was a venerable looking gentleman who registered in an old English hand, "Abner Applegate, Sharon, Pa." For years Mr. Applegate has held the office of justice of the peace in Sharon, and has an extended acquaintance. He has probably performed more marriage ceremonies than any clergyman in this city. Hardly a day passes but he is not called upon to unite two hearts in nuptial bliss.

The reason for this is that Sharon lies only a stone's throw on the other side of the Pennsylvania line. On this side the line within a radius of fifteen miles are several towns in which dwell a class of people imbued with romantic ideas. No sooner does a couple fall in love than a secret marriage is planned, and in the course of time the 'Squire and the laxity of the Pennsylvania laws, which require no marriage license, aid in consummating the clandestine union. After a time the secret is let out and congratulations are in order.

Pigeons in Military Service.

The employment of carrier pigeons as carriers between military stations in Arizona and other sections of the Indian country, where the telegraph lines are being constantly interfered with by the hostiles, and where the topography is not advantageous for heliographing and other ordinary methods of signaling, is receiving the serious attention of the War Office. In a letter from Post Townsend, Wyoming, General Nelson A. Miles says they can be made very useful in this direction, as he has demonstrated to his entire satisfaction, and General Hazen, the Chief Signal Officer, who is testing every plan and suggestion looking to the greater efficiency of his bureau and increased benefit to the general public, has taken the subject actively in hand, desiring to make this agency a valuable ally of the army in its conflicts in behalf of civilization against barbarism on our western plains. For two hundred miles these pigeons will travel as fast as the railway rapid mail, and, through a hostile country will reach their destination more surely than most men. Flying by sight, they are especially valuable in regions where there are prominent mountain peaks. Between two such posts as Forts Thomas and Apache and Thomas and San Carlos, Arizona—entirely a hostile country, broken and difficult, and in which travel is slow and almost impossible when the intervening streams are flooded—they would be of vast value compared with the insignificant cost of maintaining and training them. Troops on detached service, with no other means of communication, can employ them to convey important information with great expedition. Country physicians in England use them to great advantage with distant families. The middle feather of the tail is shaved within an inch of the end, and the message lashed thereto firmly with waxed silk. They should be written in lead pencil, as ink runs. Placed there they do not annoy the bird, but tied on the leg they interfere with his flying, and he is liable to peck and mutilate the message, rendering it unintelligible by his efforts to remove it. The clear air of Arizona and the Occident is just the element for these birds, and they are just the agency to supplement the telegraph and ordinary courier system employed by our troops in their operations against the red buccaneers of the west. Having set in motion a plan to protect our cotton, sugar and fruit industries, and having enlarged the sphere of life-saving and coast-line operations as a supplement to the military telegraph lines of the frontier, General Hazen deserves and will receive for this carrier pigeon enterprise the heartfelt thanks of every soul exposed to the onsets of the marauding red devils of the plains, be they Sioux, Apaches, Kiowas, Cheyennes, or what not. — Washington Republican.

Following a Streak of Wind.

A tributor of Ruby Hill was asked how his "pitch" looked, when he made the following curious remark: "I am following a streak of wind. Strange as this may appear (the remark, not the wind), yet it is true. It appears that in sinking upon his piece of ground he came upon a crack in the rock about three inches in width, from which issues considerable air. Where it comes from and what the miner may strike in following this strange 'lead' must for the time remain a mystery." The miner was right in following his "streak of wind." He doubtless understands that this streak of air breathed out of the depths is liable to lead him to a cave, and he also knows that a cave is liable to contain an amount of ore that would make his fortune. Among the old lead mines of Galena, Illinois, a "streak of wind," or "breathing crevice," was always considered a first-class indication. When a miner found that he was pretty sure of finding a cave filled with lead ore. The lead mines of Galena are in a limestone formation that is much the same as the formation about Eureka. "Wind" from a crevice down in the mine is worthy of much consideration, but "wind" on the surface from the horizontal crevice, an inch or so below the miner's nose, is often nothing but wind. — Ruby Hill (Nev.) News.
